Rising stars in contemporary applied arts exhibit new works at Jerwood Space

Marcin Rusak/ Juli Bolaños-Durman/ Laura Youngson Coll/ Jessica Harrison/ Sam Bakewell

28 June–27 August 2017, Jerwood Space, London

Marcin Rusak, Juli Bolaños-Durman, Laura Youngson Coll, Jessica Harrison and Sam Bakewell are exhibiting new works as part of the Jerwood Visual Arts programme at the Jerwood Space in London, from 28 June - 27 August 2017, before touring nationally. The five were selected for the sixth Jerwood Makers Open and received an award of £7,500 at the end of 2016 to realise and make ambitious new projects.

The 2017 awardees, selected from 271 submissions, each intend to explore new materials and processes for the exhibition in June. These emerging artists will develop their current practice by moving into a variety of materials that include wood, glass, organic waste and vellum (calf skin used as a material for writing). Jerwood Makers Open, which seeks to support exceptional skill and imagination, offers a rare opportunity for early-career artists to freely develop creative ideas. The exhibition, opening at Jerwood Space and touring nationally, will give audiences the chance to engage with these pioneering artists at the start of their careers.

- Marcin Rusak is reflecting on consumer culture with an installation made from perishable objects. The product designer, who comes from a family of flower growers, will create several pieces using organic composites, such as waste flowers, shellac, beeswax and resin in different stages of decay. Playing with the processes of destruction, renewal and reconstruction, the work will stimulate questions about history and possible future scenarios. marcinrusak.com
- Juli Bolaños-Durman is exploring the journey of transformation which takes place as she converts ordinary objects into objets d'art. She will create a large-scale glass installation that will connect audiences with nature through intricate, flower-like individual pieces displayed in a 'canopy'. She is incorporating lighting into her practice for the first time, creating an intimate atmosphere wherein the delicate sculptures are brought to life. julibd.com

- After originally training in sculpture, Laura Youngson Coll gained expertise in leatherwork, using this knowledge to create both fictitious and scientific depictions of the natural world in her sculptural work. For Jerwood Makers Open is experimenting with traditional bookbinding materials and techniques to create a series of pieces examining the cellular morphology of lymphoma, personally significant after the loss of her partner to lymphatic cancer. Laura is working with Bloodwise, a lymphoma and leukaemia charity, and a lymphoma specialist at Churchill Hospital, to turn complex scientific detail in clear depictions of cancerous cells. This microscopic perspective, familiar in her practice, will examine the reconciliation of scientific explanation with personal experience of illness. - Jessica Harrison is a sculptor who has experimented with a variety of materials and will use the opportunity to continue her engagement with ceramics. She is creating a new body of sculptural objects in porcelain and bone china that explores the notion of the collection as a physical grouping, and a framework that structures the viewer and their movements and sensory experiences. Working from the traditional idea of the collection this will focus on contemporary forms of collecting such as Pinterest. jessicaharrison.co.uk
- Breaking with his history in clay, Sam Bakewell will be using wood for the first time. He is using a chainsaw and chisel to carve a series of poly-chromed objects which will form enlarged abstracts with details referencing historic carving. These include water, fire, hair and animals, expanding on his interests in the philosophy and symbolism of the spiral as archetypal form. samuelbakewell.com

Over the past five editions the initiative has provided a significant platform for its selected artists, with many of the 24 recipients gaining further critical recognition following the exhibition at Jerwood Makers Open. 2012 recipient Will Shannon went on to win the PAD Prize that same year, and 2013 recipient Adam Buick has recently been granted a £25,000 Creative Wales Award in 2017. For three consecutive years Jerwood Makers Open artists were selected for the leading V&A ceramics residency: Keith Harrison in 2012, James Rigler in 2013, and both Matthew Raw and Nao Matsunaga in 2014. Silvia Weidenbach, 2012 recipient was announced as the first V&A Gilbert Collection Resident in 2017.

Jerwood Makers Open is a biennial opportunity encouraging ambitious and/or radical proposals from UK-based makers and collaborators within 10 years of beginning their practice. Launched in 2010, it focuses on makers and making supporting work in a diverse range of materials and progressive practices including, but not limited to: glass, metal, wood, paper, textiles, ceramics, furniture and jewellery. Five artists are selected through a national open call and each receive £7,500 to create new works for a national touring exhibition.

The artists were selected by an independent panel comprising Deirdre Figueiredo MBE, Director, Craftspace, alongside Skinder Hundal, CEO/Director, New Art Exchange; Geoffrey Mann, artist and Programme Director, Glass at Edinburgh College of Art; Clare Twomey, artist, and Sarah Williams, Head of Programme, Jerwood Visual Arts.

Sarah Williams comments: “Jerwood Makers Open provides a platform for artists to develop ambitious new work outside of conventional commissioning structures and an opportunity for makers to push their ideas further with financial and curatorial support. Through the selection process we reviewed a high number of proposals and the five selected makers have exceptional ideas. We look forward to supporting the development of the work over the coming months.”

Clare Twomey comments: “Jerwood Makers Open 2017 artists are a testament to the evolving role of making in creative practice. This group of artists are intrepid in their endeavour to explore ideas through material relationships. Our contemporary context of making will be seen through a generation of makers who are interested in material exploration and the rendering of dialogues through and with the collaboration of materials, it’s a very exciting selection.”

The exhibition of new works will open as part of the Jerwood Visual Arts programme at Jerwood Space, London, from 28 June–27 August 2017, before touring the UK. ### Notes to editors

About Jerwood Makers Open:

Launched in 2010, Jerwood Makers Open creates a space in which to recognise and promote the significance of making practice and process within contemporary visual arts. It offers skillful makers at the early stages of their careers an opportunity to develop their creative ideas independently of specific commissioning structures, and with substantial curatorial support. To date the initiative has invested funds totaling £217,500 to support 29 major new commissions. Selected artists by year are:

2011: Farah Bandoowala, Emmanuel Boos, Heike Brachlow and Keith Harrison
 2012: Nao Matsunaga, James Rigler, William Shannon, Louis Thompson and Silvia Weidenbach
 2013: Maisie Broadhead, Linda Brothwell, Adam Buick, Nahoko Kojima, Roanna Wells
 2014: Hitomi Hosono, Matthew Raw, Revital Cohen and Tuur Van Balen, Shelley James and FleaFollyArchitects
 2015: Zachary Eastwood-Bloom, Malene Hartmann Rasmussen, Jasleen Kaur, Ian McIntyre and Silo Studio

Jerwood Makers Open is part of Jerwood Visual Arts, a national programme supporting visual arts practice, through which Jerwood Charitable Foundation works with early career artists to commission and present new work. Artist opportunities run throughout the year alongside a programme of related exhibitions, events and commissioned writing taking place online, in London and across the UK. www.jerwoodvisualarts.org

The Jerwood Charitable Foundation is dedicated to imaginative and responsible revenue funding of the arts, supporting artists to develop and grow at important stages in their careers. The aim of its funding is to allow artists and arts organisations to thrive; to continue to develop their skills, imagination and creativity with integrity. It works across art forms, from dance and theatre to literature, music and the visual arts. #### About the Jerwood Makers Open 2017 artists:

Sam Bakewell

Sam Bakewell (b. 1983 in Yeovil, Somerset) predominately works with clay but has also used other materials in the past such as glass, wood, leather and plaster in varying methods and using historic references. Based in London, he has been working at Edmund de Waal Studios since 2012 and is part of Studio Manifold (an artist group that includes 2015 Jerwood Makers Open awardees Ian McIntyre and Zachary Eastwood-Bloom as well as 2014 artist Matthew Raw). He won the 2015 British Ceramics Biennial AWARD and is confirmed to show a new piece of work at the 2017 edition. His work has been shown in group exhibitions at Corvi-Mora, Marsden Woo Gallery and National Museum of Wales. Sam graduated from the Royal College of Art, London, in 2011 and Cardiff Metropolitan University in 2005.

Marcin Rusak

Marcin Rusak (b. 1987 in Warsaw, Poland) is a multidisciplinary designer and artist who runs his own design studio. In 2015 he had his first solo show at the Contemporary Applied Arts gallery in London and recently exhibited at the group shows 'What is Luxury?' at the V&A, London, and 'handiCRAFT: Traditional Skills in the Digital Age' at MAK Vienna, Austria, as well as the shows Design Miami Basel and Decorex. Marcin has been awarded the Perrier-Jouët Arts Salon prize 2016 for emerging artists continuing in the tradition of Art Nouveau. The London-based Polish designer has a MA in Design Products at Royal College of Art, a BA in European Studies at University of Warsaw, and has taken the course Man and Living at Eindhoven Design Academy, Netherlands.

Laura Youngson Coll

Laura Youngson Coll (b. 1978 in Co. Durham) has worked for 13 years with leather and vellum specialist Rooks Books whilst developing her practice as maker in fine art. Since 2012 Laura has been focusing on her own sculptural work, integrating her extensive knowledge and skills in leatherwork. She won the Perrier-Jouët Arts Salon Award in 2014 and has shown at Collect and at National Trust properties Biddulph Grange Gardens and Barrington Court. The London-based artist has a MA Sculpture at the Royal College of Art, 2004, and a BA in Sculpture at the Duncan of Jordanstone College of Art at the University of Dundee, 2001.

Juli Bolaños-Durman

Living in Scotland, Juli Bolaños-Durman (b. 1984 in Costa Rica) originally trained in graphic design and worked in mixed media, predominantly in glass repurposing found objects and transforming them into precious artefacts that tell a story. She was winner of the Elle Decoration British Design Awards 2015 and was awarded an Exceptional Talent (Promise) Visa which was endorsed by Arts Council England. Her work has been exhibited internationally including at COLLECT, Dovecot Studios and London Design Festival. She studied Graphic Design at San Jose University in Costa Rica, 2006, and subsequently studied in Venice, New York and Edinburgh, completing an MFA in Glass at the University of Edinburgh in 2013.

Jessica Harrison

Jessica Harrison (b 1982 in St Bees, Cumbria) works with a wide variety of materials from marble to paint and digital collage, but most recently she has been working exclusively with ceramics. Her practice explores the mechanics of perception and a fallibility of observation through an examination of the interaction between the visual and the tactile. The Edinburgh-based artist has had solo exhibitions at Galerie LJ in Paris, Jupiter Artland in Edinburgh and Jealous Gallery in London. Just in 2016 her work was also shown at La Maison Rouge in Paris, Keramiemuseum Princessehof in Leeuwarden and Royal Scottish Academy in Edinburgh. She moved to Scotland to study sculpture at Edinburgh College of Art in 2000, going on to do an MFA before completing a practice-led PhD in sculpture in 2013, funded by the Arts and Humanities Research Council.

About the Jerwood Makers Open 2017 selection panel:*Deirdre Figueiredo MBE

Deirdre Figueiredo is Director of Craftspace which works in partnership with makers and artists, audiences, venues and a diverse range of organisations to push boundaries and perceptions around contemporary crafts practice, touring productions and audience development.

Deirdre has selected for numerous awards and open exhibitions including the International Festival of Glass Biennial, the Crafts Council's Sparkplug awards, Crafts Council's Origin the London craft fair and the Oriel Davies Gallery open exhibition. She is Co-Secretariat for CraftNet, the national crafts leadership network. She is also Chair of Create in Ireland, a board member of Punch and Axis and a Trustee of The Crafts Study Centre, Farnham.
